Three Pillars Ranked Best by U.S. News & World Report, Scores Exceptionally High in Several Categories

Dousman, Wis. – U.S. News & World Report has released its 2025 list of “Best Senior Living Communities” and Three Pillars Senior Living Communities has retained its position as a nationally-recognized top-rated Continuing Care Retirement Community. Three Pillars also received “Best” rankings - the highest possible - in Independent Living and Assisted Living.

For their 2025 list, U.S. News & World Report analyzed nearly 450,000 survey responses from residents and their family members at 3,819 senior living communities nationwide. Communities are evaluated on several criteria, including resident and family members’ satisfaction with safety, care, management and staff, activities and enrichment, food, feeling like home, value, and other services and amenities.

Only 1,894 of 3,819 communities U.S. News & World Report evaluated earned a “Best” rating for even one type of care, and Three Pillars earned three:

- Best Continuing Care Retirement Community (one of 57 in the nation)
- Best Independent Living
- Best Assisted Living

New this year, U.S. News & World Report also highlights communities who scored exceptionally high in certain categories of their survey. Three Pillars is recognized with additional accolades for:

- Caregiving - Assisted Livings
- Activities & Enrichment, Feels Like Home, and Food & Dining – Independent Living

These new rankings join Three Pillars’ already top-ranked Best Skilled Nursing Short-Term Rehabilitation, which is evaluated separately. Learn more about Three Pillars’ rankings at: www.threepillars.org/our-story/news and U.S. News’ site: <https://health.usnews.com/best-senior-living>.
